Las Vegas Strip Condo Website Geared Towards Celebrities and Pro Athletes Hits the Scene

As the U.S. housing economy continues to slump, one REALTOR® keeps hitting the mark. In the hardest of times, not only has Aaron Auxier earned the nickname 'Hollywood's Connection to Vegas', he now owns one of the hottest real estate websites in Sin City!

“ I want celebrities and athletes to know that they have rights when it comes to purchasing high-rise condos in Las Vegas ”

Las Vegas, Nevada (PRWEB) April 16, 2008 -- Once again, Celebrity High-Rise Consultant Aaron Auxier is the talk of the town. Auxier recently launched the new www.VegasCondoScene.com, a chic and trendy website that caters to celebrities and professional athletes who want to learn about the Las Vegas high-rise market.

"VegasCondoScene is extremely easy to use and shares relevant facts about individual buildings," explains Auxier. "Most importantly, it gives those who seek discretion an opportunity to learn about my boutique firm Luxury Realty Group, our commitment to client privacy, and our connections in Las Vegas. It's where hip meets luxury."

Taking the place of typical client testimonials is a Kudos page. Having been tagged 'Hollywood's Connection to Vegas' by E! Entertainment founder Alan Mrukka, visitors can read quotes from people in the entertainment and real estate industries regarding Auxier's knowledge of the market and experience with protecting high-profile clientele.

The focus on education is made obvious throughout the site. Frequently Asked Questions, High-Rise Tips, and Questions to Ask a REALTOR® are all found in the site's menus. Visitors can learn what they might sacrifice by requesting information direct from a sales center, encounter in a dual agency, and much more. "I want celebrities and athletes to know that they have rights when it comes to purchasing high-rise condos in Las Vegas," says Auxier. "Many times they don't know how easily they can lose those rights. Think of me as a sports agent for real estate"

Aaron also understands why some people get frustrated and contact sales centers direct. "Las Vegas high-rise websites (built by real estate agents) are often outdated when it comes to information, renderings, and pricing," he says. "Many sites simply clutter their pages with cut-and-paste information from developer websites."

VegasCondoScene features 100 percent original, hand-written content. An exciting feature of the site is the Lifestyle: by Aaron sections. Whether they desire the glitz and glamour of The Harmon Residences at CityCenter or the refined global elegance of the Palazzo Luxury Condominiums, potential investors will get an insider's take on the ambiance and vibe of individual projects.

Visitors can also view a map which highlights the locations of hotel and condo developments on or near the Las Vegas Strip. Through the use of a color-coded legend, the map points out projects that are: proposed, approved, under construction, and existing.

Aaron Auxier, who recently received national press for setting the top-three residential price-per-square-foot records in the history of Las Vegas by selling multiple penthouses to clients 'in the music biz', seems to have yet another hit on his hands.

The new VegasCondoScene is ready for prime time.
